In Florida, after two nights of hard freeze over more than half of the state, thousands of workmen harvested frozen citrus fruit before it deteriorated. If picked and processed before deterioration starts, the f. ozen fruit still is suitable for juice concentrates. The number of pickers wasn't nearly enough. Vegetable crops, also heavily damaged by the century's worst cold wave needed hurried picking because much of them still were marketable.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture authorized the import of some 3 000 Jamaicans to help in the fruit and vecetable harvest. At the height of the harvesting in the Sunshine State about 50,000 migrants work the fields.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) The 33 states in the Interstate Oil Compact Commission have been asked to insist that Congress eliminate federal control over wellhead prices of natural gas.

The oil and gas conservation group also has asked that the oil imports control program be broadened to include heavy fuel oils and imports to West Coast states.

The gas and imports resolutions were approved Wednesday at the final session of the annual meeting of the interstate body that serves as the forum on oil and gas conservation problems. The gas resolutions reaffirmed Compact members had been urged to cooperate with the FPC in developing the area formula for each of the nation's major gas producing area. But the new resution said recent actions by the FPC have been contrary to the rmulas' original concept.

The FPC staff recently recom ended that a ceiling price instead of a minimum price be set for the vast Permian Basin of west Texas and New Mexico.

Five recent acquisitions by the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center are on exhibit this month at the center.

They include four by the late Boardman Robinson, nationally known artist who for years was head of the Fine Arts Center art school and was associated with the Fountain Valley School for many years.

A fourth Robinson piece is ano ther drawing, gift of Mrs. Partridge.

The fifth new acquisition is a crayon and ink color drawing by Donald Bear, upper right, enti-tled, "Mountain Landscape." Bear at one time directed the Denver Art Museum and later was director of the Santa Barbara Art Museum. The drawing is a gift of Mrs. Bear.

These and other items from the permanent collection, including examples of contemporary American and European painting, will be on view thru December.

The story excited Verdi. He and du Locle began work on a scenario, and a Cairo production date in January, 1871 was agreed upon. After much detailed correspondence between Verdi and Antonio Ghislanzoni, his librettist, a story was evolved about an Egyptian hero (Radames) who spurns the hand of a princess (Amneris) for the love of a slave (Aida) who is actually the captive daughter of the King of Ethiopia. Jealousy and patriotism join together in the end to bring destruction to the two lovers.

Pfc Dix B. Robert of Ft. Carson, winner of two first-place awards in the All-Army photography contest, is in the running for All-Armed Forces honors.

Winners of the interservice contest will be announced this month Roberts's entries are "Up and Away," which shows a group of ducks captured in mid-flight rising from a marsh and "Frosty Morning," a color study of Army trainees in bivouac. They were judged tops in the "Animals and Pets" and "Military Life" catecories respectively of the Army competition.

Roberts photographed the ducks in the marshes of Great Salt Lake near his home in Layton, Utah. The shot was taken at 2 p. m. with an Exacta camera and telephoto lens at 5.6 and 1-500.

He got his other prize winning shot last February when he was in basic training at Carson. A oneinch layer of frost coating the landscape is the basis for the title of the picture.

Sandy Stewart Makes Hit With 'My Coloring Book'

By DICK KLEINER

NEW YORK-(NEA)-There are near Sandy's popularity. three points of interest in the sudden popularity of the song, "My

2. It is the first time in some years that an old-fashioned torch ong has become a hit.

3. It may make the public at last appreciate the exquisite talent of Sandy Stewart.

"My Coloring Book" was written by Fred Ebb and John Kander, who are good friends of Kaye Ballard. They've written a lot of Miss Ballard's special material. And so, when they wrote "My Coloring Book," they took it first to Miss Ballard.

Now let Sandy Stewart, who with Kaye Ballard is a member of Perry Como's television family, pick up the story.

"Kaye called me on the phone,

Sandy says, "and told me she had a good song but that it would fit me better than her. She had Fred and John do the song over the phone to me, and I loved it. But that was all; I never get a chance to do an original on Perry's show so I just figured I'd use the song in my night club act."

But the unexpected happened. Sandra Dee was supposed to be a guest on the Como show, but at the last minute she was ill. Perry gave Sandy Miss Dee's time and said she could do anything she wanted. What she wanted to do was "My Coloring Book." It was an instant hit.

Sandy recorded it for Colpix Records, and several other com-panies "covered" the hit. Only
